Judge sends message to callous cops

Case thrown out. Mocking man in urine-soaked pants a sign of 'institutional attitude'

Toronto police officers left a man arrested for impaired driving in his urine-soaked pants for 10 hours and belittled him as he was searched — an "abuse of personal dignity" that prompted a judge to throw out the case against him.

Ontario Court Justice Lawrence Feldman said he wanted to send a message that "willful indifference" endemic in the police force is unacceptable.

Rathan Sathymoorthy "endured humiliation, discomfort and jeopardy to his composure," Feldman wrote in his decision, finding that Sathymoorthy's Charter rights were violated.

"Very little was required of the police to respect and accommodate the security interests of their detainee ... providing him a change of clothing or at least a blanket to keep him warm, calling a family member to bring in dry clothes or releasing the accused earlier to a friend or relative."

So even though he found Sathymoorthy guilty of operating a vehicle while impaired, a stay of the proceedings was the only option, he wrote.

"A polite signal from the court with little meaningful consequences would be ineffective in changing the institutional attitude on display here," he wrote.

According to Feldman's decision, the booking video shows the officers acting unprofessionally.

Feldman noted that as one officer attempted to remove Sathymoorthy's ring, another said sarcastically, "I'm sure (it) got tighter with urine."

When Sathymoorthy informed an officer that he was cold and wet, he was told: "What else do you expect in jail?"

Though embarrassed, Sathymoorthy was polite and co-operative throughout, Feldman said.

"While the actions of drinking drivers need not be accorded respect, their treatment during investigation and while in custody must be handled responsibly and with reasonable consideration. That standard was not met here," Feldman wrote.

Toronto police spokesperson Mark Pugash told Torstar News Service that the police "take any such comments by judges very seriously" and that the Professional Standards Unit will be investigating. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Background

Rathan Sathymoorthy was arrested after nearly causing a head-on collision and running into the back of a truck on the night of Aug. 3, 2012.

- He testified that he urinated on himself shortly after being placed in the back of a police cruiser.
- When he arrived at 41 Division in Scarborough, he was searched as officers made demeaning comments about his state.

Baldwin channels his inner Ford

Getting his Rob on.
Actor creating TV show featuring a very familiar character: Source

Actor Alec Baldwin wants to bring some of Toronto's mayoral drama to the small screen.

Baldwin is currently developing a new TV show with NBC where he would play a Rob Ford-like character, a source close to the production confirmed.

Entertainment website Deadline Hollywood reported the project would be a one-hour cable series, with Baldwin playing the central character, a "Rob Ford-type mayor of New York."

The former 30 Rock star will also reportedly be an executive producer on the show, along with Cary Brokaw. Fiction writer Wells Tower is reportedly writing the series pilot.

Baldwin had previously mused about becoming mayor of the Big Apple in real life, saying he might take a run at the job after learning more about what responsibilities the position entails.

Like Ford, the actor has had some high-profile problems in recent years, including family drama and substance abuse problems. In February Baldwin announced he was quitting public life in an essay for New York magazine's Vulture.

This wouldn't be the first creative project to capitalize on Ford's fame.

Last month auditions were held for Rob Ford the Musical and, in May, scandalized playwright Mike Daisey debuted a one-man show called Dreaming of Rob Ford.

Stintz gets apology for lewd comments

Mayor Rob Ford has apologized to Councillor Karen Stintz for making lewd comments about her during an intoxicated rant.

Stintz said she met with Ford Thursday morning and that the matter is "now closed." She said she would not be discussing what was said. The mayor's spokesperson, Amin Massoudi, said the two met for about 15 minutes.

Torstar News Service has learned the mayor initiated the meeting and that the mayor did apologize. In audio posted by the Toronto Sun that prompted Ford's return to rehab in May, the mayor can be heard saying that he would like to "f-ing jam" Stintz.

Stintz responded to the comments at the time saying they were "deeply offensive to everyone living in Toronto."

When Ford returned from rehab, he gave a statement to a limited group of reporters where he apologized for his behaviour and apologized specifically to Stintz. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Mayor against proposal to help gay homeless youth

Mayor Rob Ford was the only member of council to vote Thursday against a proposal to find ways to better assist homeless young people who are gay. The proposal passed 37-1.

Ford, who has a long history of homophobic remarks and opposition to gay initiatives, placed a temporary "hold" on the proposal on Tuesday to prevent it from passing unanimously without a vote. He did not explain his opposition.

The vote came a day after Ford refused to stand during a council ovation for the organizers of the World Pride festival. He said later that he is "not homophobic," but he would not explain why he did not join his colleagues in applause.

"He's done everything he can to demonstrate this is a community he doesn't care about," said Kristyn Wong-Tam of Ford's attitude toward the LGBT community. "I think he's voting with his values and his values are he doesn't support the LGBT community."

The three-part proposal asks the city's shelters chief to look into the feasibility of allocating 25 per cent of beds in an existing youth shelter to people who identify as LGBTQ2S (lesbian, gay, bisexual, trans, queer, two-spirited).

It also asks the city to issue a formal call for expressions of interest in operating a shelter or transitional housing devoted exclusively to gay youth. And it requires the city to "immediately" provide anti-homophobia training to all employees of existing shelters. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Gaga gives fan a ‘big old squeeze’

Brain tumour survivor. Singer’s music helped blind Ontario girl, 10, through tough times

Avery Fournier, left, got the meet-and-greet of a lifetime with her idol, Lady Gaga. Mom Chris Fournier says the visit gave her daughter a boost in confidence. TOM PANDI/FOR METRO

Walking into a room of about 25 excited fans, or “little monsters,” as they’re known, Gaga called out for Avery Fournier, a 10-year-old blind brain tumour survivor whose dream was to meet her idol.

“Avery put up her hand and she said, ‘OK, you get the first hug,’ and she gave her a big old squeeze,” says Avery’s mom, Chris Fournier. “I was sitting behind her trying not to cry.”

The fifth-grader from Chatham was left legally blind after surgery in December to remove 70 per cent of a tumour at the base of her cerebellum.

She relied on Lady Gaga songs such as Donatella and Bad Romance to get through the tough moments. Born this Way was her anthem when she was teased by kids at school for being different.

A kind stranger on Kijiji gave Fournier two tickets to Gaga’s ArtRave concert after learning of Avery’s situation, but because the seats were in section 300, Avery could hear, but not see, her idol. Thanks to a Torstar News Service story and Twitter support, Avery was granted her wish.

“All I wanted was for them to kind of be nose to nose so that she could really see, and they were nose to nose for 30 seconds. It was just all Eskimo kisses,” says Fournier.

Dressed in a black wig and a white shawl that Fournier says reminded her of “something my mother would wear in the seventies,” Lady Gaga spent about 15 minutes chatting with Avery, telling her to ignore bullies at school and to be herself in what Fournier calls “a little Dr. Phil session.”

Avery, who called the experience “awesome,” said that although her parents tell her these things all the time “just hearing the voice from someone else” makes all the difference. She says playing with Gaga’s black French bulldog, Asia, was her favourite part.

“She was messing around and she caught my leg,” she said.

Avery may have been slightly star-struck, but her mom says she could see a difference in her daughter right away.

“When we got in you could see that she was a little hunched over and maybe a little bit nervous or whatnot as to what she was going to say. But after Gaga got done talking to her, you could see that good old confidence come back. It was amazing,” she says.

“It was just like they’d been friends forever, it was just incredible. It was like a big sister little sister type thing.”

“The confidence that (Gaga) instilled in Avery is incredible, and I know she will take that from last night and she’ll keep it forever,” says Fournier.

TTC CUSTOMER CHARTER PROMISES ON TRACK

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

At the halfway point of the year, the TTC is making good progress on the 39 commitments made in the 2014 Customer Charter.

The second quarter features eight specific promises to improve key aspects of our service.

Our drive to improve the cleanliness of our system continued with work to recondition platforms at a number of our subway stations, as well as upgrades to lighting, making the stations well-lit and welcoming.

To make buying fares easier, we completed the conversion of all of our Pass Vending Machines to accept both debit and credit cards now.

Recognizing the importance of quality customer information, we upgraded the speakers in five subway stations to make public address announcements easier to understand. We also evaluated the results of the revised wayfinding signage trial at Bloor-Yonge station and on our system maps. Based on positive customer feedback, all maps and signs will be progressively upgraded to this new standard.

By the end of the quarter, we fully implemented the support person's identification card program where no fare is charged for a support person travelling with a customer with a disability.

The one target we missed related to expansion of the range of tickets, tokens and passes that can be bought by debit or credit cards from station collectors. There has been a slight delay in delivery of the necessary equipment to manage these transactions, but we expect to resolve this during the third quarter.

Looking ahead, we expect to deliver an all-Toronto Rocket train service on Line 1 (Yonge-University-Spadina) by the fall, earlier than the year-end target to which we committed.

These improvements, as well as a relentless focus on our core business of providing a safe, punctual, reliable service, moves us closer to delivering on our vision of a transit system that makes Toronto proud.

TTC TRACK WORK TO CLOSE SPADINA AND DUNDAS BEGINNING MONDAY

Beginning July 14, the TTC will be replacing tracks at the intersection of Spadina and Dundas. During the closure, platforms at Spadina Station will be upgraded to accommodate the new low-floor streetcar. City of Toronto crews will also conduct watermain work and sidewalk repairs at this time.

TTC service will be adjusted in three phases. The first, from July 14 to 28, will require 505 Dundas streetcars to divert and 510 Spadina streetcars to be replaced by buses.

Service impact

505 Dundas streetcars:
- Diverting via McCaul St., College St., Bathurst St., to route.

510 Spadina replacement bus service:
- Southbound buses will operate from the bus platform at Spadina Station diverting via Spadina Rd., Spadina Ave., Queens Quay into Queens Quay/Spadina loop.
- Northbound buses will operate from Queens Quay/Spadina Loop diverting via Spadina Ave., Spadina Rd. to the bus platform at Spadina Station.

For information on the project, including the next two phases, watch the TTC's latest explainer video at YouTube.com/OfficialTTCchanel.

Dyslexia linked to child abuse

U of T study. Over a third of the five million Canadians with dyslexia were physically abused during childhood

PHOEBE HO
toronto@metronews.ca

There's a major link between dyslexia and childhood physical abuse, according to a recent University of Toronto study.

Published last week in the Journal of Interpersonal Violence, the study found that just over one third of Canadians afflicted with dyslexia — a learning disability which affects an estimated five million Canadians and can hinder reading, writing or sometimes even speech — reported they were physically abused during childhood.

Co-author and U of T professor Esme Fuller-Thomson said the results were based on data from Statistics Canada. Combing through the 2005 Canadian Community Health Survey, researchers conducted a secondary analysis of data from 13,054 respondents aged 18 years or older from the Manitoba and Saskatchewan sample.

With age, race, sex and other early adversities like parental addictions taken into account, Fuller-Thomson said they still found nearly 35 per cent of those suffering from dyslexia reported abuse, compared to just seven per cent of those without dyslexia.

The results came as a surprise to her.

"I thought there'd be some association, but I pictured it maybe going from seven per cent to 10 per cent or something," she said. "But to go from seven per cent to 35 per cent … almost in my 20-year career, I don't think I've seen a difference that big."

Fuller-Thomson also published another study back in March that found 30 per cent of those suffering from attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD) reported physical abuse when they were young, compared to seven per cent of those without the condition.

U of T professor Esme Fuller-Thomson has co-authored a study that shows a link between dyslexia and childhood physical abuse. She says she was surprised by the results. CONTRIBUTED

"ADHD is probably a little more understandable because there's a hereditary component to it so there might be some impulse control issues at the parental level, and kids with ADHD may have some acting-out behaviour," she explained. "But dyslexia, this is a learning disability. I would've thought the level of parental frustration around this wouldn't be huge."

But what still is unclear to her, though, is whether dyslexia is the result of physical abuse, or the other way around.

Surprised

"This is a learning disability. I would've thought the level of parental frustration around this wouldn't be huge."

Esme Fuller-Thomson, study co-author

"It could be that the parents are frustrated, (they) think the child's not working adequately and is not succeeding because of lack of effort and that may result in abuse," she said. "Or it could go the other way. It's possible that early abuse can cause developmental changes in the brain to make a child more prone to dyslexia."

Regardless of the direction of the association, Fuller-Thomson said the numbers are concerning and urges health-care providers and school-based practitioners working with dyslexic children to screen them for physical abuse.

Wicket plan. A cricket stadium in Toronto?

Cricket lovers are one step closer to having a stadium in the GTA and if one local league has its way, the facility will be landing in Toronto.

Canadian Premier League T20 chairman Roy Singh says his league has secured $700 million from Avcom Investments Inc. to construct the cricket facility.

Roy Singh

"Brampton is pushing us very hard (and) so is Markham, but if Toronto comes to the table with something we can look at and work with successfully, I will definitely choose Toronto," Singh says.

If all goes according to plan, League president Bob Mitchell says there will be a "stadium built and ready for international cricket within four to five years." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Insurers asked to stop seeking access to results of genetic tests

Privacy. Despite broad political consensus, there are currently no laws that prohibit genetic discrimination

Canada's privacy watchdog is urging insurance companies and others to stop asking for access to the results of existing genetic tests.

Privacy Commissioner Daniel Therrien says it is becoming more of a challenge to protect people's genetic privacy with recent advances in science and technology.

"We are calling on the industry to refrain from asking for existing test results to assess insurance risk until the industry can clearly show that these tests are necessary and effective in assessing risk," Therrien said in a statement Thursday.

There are now hundreds of tests to help spot genes known to increase a person's risk of certain medical conditions.

But some people may decline tests for fear a positive result may mean they could face discrimination from insurance companies or their employers.

There are currently no laws in Canada that specifically prohibit genetic discrimination, although there appears to be broad political consensus around the issue.

Quoted

"This would allow people to undergo genetic testing for various purposes without fear that the results may have a negative impact if they apply for insurance."

Privacy Commissioner Daniel Therrien, who is calling on insurance companies to stop asking for results of genetic tests

The most recent Conservative throne speech promised to stop employers and insurance companies from discriminating against Canadians on the basis of genetic testing.

Last year, the Liberal leader in the Senate introduced legislation that would stop insurance companies and others from discriminating against people who are genetically susceptible to some diseases.

Past Conservative and Liberal election platforms pledged to stop discriminatory life insurance practices, while the NDP once introduced a private member's bill in the House of Commons to ban "genetic characteristics" as grounds for discrimination under the Canadian Human Rights Act.

Bus Riiii-der. Winnipeg softens stance on musical performances on transit

Winnipeg city hall is changing its tune about passengers who feel like singing aboard public-transit buses.

The city had proposed a bylaw that would have called for a $100 fine for disruptive behaviour on buses, which included singing and other musical performances.

There was an immediate backlash by some residents who said there should be higher priorities for city hall.

The idea was also mocked on social media.

Some people questioned whether mimes would be tolerated.

Now, the city says it is amending the proposed rules to allow for singing that does not disturb other passengers or the driver.

Manitoba. Zoo's popular exhibit fully reopens after it had gone to the wolves

The full Journey to Churchill experience at the Assiniboine Park Zoo in Manitoba has reopened, after closing when wolves broke into the polar bear exhibit.

Just five days after opening the new $94.4-million exhibit, the zoo was forced to close the attraction's biggest draw — the waterfall at the Churchill Coast — and the wolf enclosure for two days of repairs.

"We have a fence that subdivides the one exhibit, we have wolves on one side and the two female polar bears on the other side," explained Assiniboine Park Conservancy COO Don Peterkin. "The wolves … found a spot where they could dig through that barrier and come up on the bear side.

"So they went for a visit."

N.Y.C. looks at regulating performers

The New York City Council is considering legislation to regulate the costumed characters who roam Times Square.

The bill would require that the costumed performers be licensed and go through a background check.

City Councilman Dan Garodnick says there are still copyright issues that need to be worked out before the bill can be presented to the City Council for approval.

There have been a number of troublesome incidents involving costumed figures who try to make a living by charming tourists. They include a person dressed as Super Mario who was accused of groping a woman.

Pig threatens two children walking

Police in the Maine town of Oakland are looking for a pig that threatened two children walking through the woods.

Capt. Rick Stubbert told the Morning Sentinel that the children were walking along a trail in the wooded area between the local middle school and the high school at about 1:45 p.m. Tuesday when the pig confronted them "screaming at the kids and chasing them."

The children were so frightened they flagged down a police officer. Police did not disclose the children's age.

Officers, including animal control, responded to the scene, and although they found tracks that confirmed the pig was real, they didn't find the animal.

Even death can't tear this love for jazz apart

New York. Cemetery builds plots so jazz lovers can be buried near their favourite musicians

Some jazz fans are devoted to the very end.

At The Woodlawn Cemetery in the Bronx, so many jazz enthusiasts want to be buried near the graves of such greats as Miles Davis and Duke Ellington that the cemetery is developing new plots to meet the demand.

The cemetery is building about 2,275 new burial plots between the grave of Latin music star Celia Cruz and "Jazz Corner," the area where musicians Davis, Ellington, Lionel Hampton and Illinois Jacquet are buried.

"With the history of the Bronx and everybody that is planning ahead, we have a lot of requests to be close to Miles Davis and Celia Cruz," said cemetery executive director David Ison.

Pauline Smith, 74, bought a burial plot near Jazz Corner about three years ago. She is an avid jazz lover and throws regular parties where she hires jazz musicians to play at her home in New Rochelle.

"The music is in the earth and in the air and in the heavens," she said. "I love the idea that I could be continuing my love on the other side."

Earlier this year, the cemetery opened up 70 burial plots behind Davis' grave in Jazz Corner, separate from the new development, and almost all of them have already been sold.

The complex also includes a mausoleum finished in February with space for about 275 sets of remains and a starting price of $6,000 per plot. Four smaller buildings planned for the site do not have an estimated completion date.

The 400-acre cemetery, at about half the size of Central Park, is also the final resting place of such notables as journalist Joseph Pulitzer, women's rights pioneer Elizabeth Cady Stanton and composer Irving Berlin.

Gunman demanded to know estranged wife's whereabouts

Texas. Man dressed as FedEx driver barged into home, killing 4 children, parents

A gunman dressed as a delivery man forced his way into his sister-in-law's suburban Houston home where he held her children at gunpoint until their parents arrived. Then he opened fire, killing four of the children and the two adults, law enforcement officials said Thursday.

Ronald Lee Haskell, 33, has been charged with multiple counts of capital murder in the killings Wednesday evening, the Harris County Sheriff's Office said in a statement. He is also accused of critically wounding a 15-year-old girl in the shooting rampage.

When he arrived at the door, Haskell demanded to know where he could find his estranged wife, the statement said. After the children's parents, Katie, 33, and Stephen Stay, 39, arrived home, Haskell opened fire on the family. The children killed were two boys ages four and 14, plus two girls ages seven and nine, Harris County Sheriff's Deputy Thomas Gilliland said.

Five family members were dead when police arrived. Two were transported by helicopter to a Houston hospital, where one died and the other remains in critical condition, the statement said.

Documents introduced during a preliminary court hearing Thursday show the 15-year-old girl attempted to close the door to the home after telling Haskell her parents weren't home, according to a report by KPRC-TV in Houston. But he kicked in the door.

Background

- Haskell was the estranged husband of Katie Stay's sister, according to Harris County Precinct 4 Constable Ron Hickman.
- Neighbour Verena Beckstrand, 42, said Katie Stay went to Utah last fall to help her sister escape her relationship with Haskell and make a fresh start in Texas.

A family who identified themselves as friends of the shooting victims leave the home where the family was shot after placing flowers and a photograph on the porch Thursday in Spring, Texas. The Harris County Sheriff's Office said Ronald Lee Haskell was booked Thursday on a capital murder and several other murder counts. DAVID J. PHILLIP/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

India. Plans to build colossal, costly statue causes public uproar

In a country grappling with poverty, sluggish growth and a daunting deficit, India's new budget has set aside $33 million US for a colossal iron-and-bronze statue almost twice the size of the Statue of Liberty.

The plans in Thursday's budget for a 182-metre-tall replica of Indian independence leader Vallabhbhai Patel caused an outcry, with many people saying the country has far more urgent priorities.

"How can they waste money on a statue like that?" asked Rohtash, a vegetable vendor in the Indian capital who goes by one name. "The government could have used that money to reduce the price of rice. That would have been some help for poor people like us."

It was the first budget of a new government elected on promises to revive stalled economic growth.

Others lamented how the budget earmarks more money for the Patel statue than for women's safety nationwide, which got $25 million US, or the education of young girls at 1 billion rupees or $16.5 million US.

The move was criticized strongly on social media, with one sarcastic Twitter user saying: "Truly #budget2014 has something for everyone, even Sardar Patel." The move was rated "most disliked" on the website of NDTV news channel, and the Times of India newspaper started a Twitter poll asking if the statue is a "wasteful expenditure."

The project was originally meant to be financed by the local government and donations of iron and cash from across the country. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Patel was one of the most important members of the Congress party, which dominated Indian politics for almost 60 years after the country won its independence from British rule.

Thailand. Junta fires railway chief after furor over rape, killing of girl

The head of Thailand's state railway was sacked Thursday by the country's military government after a public furor over the rape and killing of a 13-year-old girl in her berth on an overnight train.

The junta, which took power in a May 22 coup, broadcast a decree over television ordering State Railway of Thailand governor Prapas Chongsa-nguan to leave his post in order to make railway operations more orderly. He had earlier declined to resign in response to calls for him to show responsibility.

Police arrested a railway worker for the rape and killing of the girl travelling Saturday night from the south to Bangkok. Police said he had confessed to the crime and tossing her body from the car. It was not found until Tuesday morning. The crime sparked a public outcry calling for capital punishment for rape. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Flurry of criticism after Hitler tweet

Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak on Thursday chided a ruling party lawmaker for tweeting a salute to Adolf Hitler while praising Germany for making it to the World Cup final.

Bung Moktar Radin drew a flurry of criticism with his tweet: "Well done . Bravo . Long live Hitler ." after Germany thrashed Brazil 7-1 on Tuesday.

"He does not speak for Malaysia, or for ordinary Malaysians, who understand Europe's tragic past," Najib said in a statement.

German Ambassador Holger Michael slammed the "unacceptable allusion to the fascist regime of Adolf Hitler." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Group calls for ban on two chemicals in consumer goods

Great Lakes. Canadian Environmental Law Association urges ban on triclosan and triclocarban, which are in everything from soap to yoga mats

Canada should ban two antibacterial chemicals used in many consumer products that are accumulating in the waters of the Great Lakes, a report issued Thursday said.

The report, from the Canadian Environmental Law Association, also suggested Canada, the United States and all provinces and states bordering the Great Lakes should prohibit use of the chemicals and assess proposed alternatives before they are used.

The two products are triclosan and triclocarban, which are used alone and together in products such as toothpaste, body washes, bar soap and clothing. The chemicals are even found in yoga mats.

Used for decades, the chemicals have been coming under increasing scrutiny in recent years.

In December, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration announced it was reconsidering the safety of antibacterial soaps and other antibacterial personal care products because of concerns the chemicals they contain may disrupt human hormones and contribute to the development of antibiotic resistance.

Then in May, Minnesota made headlines when it banned triclosan. The report called triclosan a chemical of high concern and triclocarban a chemical that should be replaced with safer alternatives.

Those rankings were based on an analysis the group conducted using a tool called the GreenScreen assessment. It measures a chemical's impact against 18 human health and environmental criteria, such as whether there is evidence they cause reproductive toxicity, endocrine activity, eye irritation or skin sensitivity. It also looks at whether the chemicals are flammable and whether they accumulate in the environment.

Samsung Electronics. Fresh claim of child labour at China supplier

Samsung is facing a fresh accusation that one of its China suppliers hired children to meet production targets during a period of high demand from the South Korean electronics giant.

Samsung Electronics Co. said Thursday it is looking into the allegation by China Labor Watch that its supplier Shinyang Electronics in Dongguan hired children and student workers under the legal working age.

The New York-based labour watchdog said children were hired during a busy production period, worked for 11 hours a day without overtime pay and without social insurance. They usually left employment after three to six months when demand from Samsung declined, but without any severance pay.

The accusation conflicts with Samsung's recent report on conditions at suppliers. It said no child labour was found by an external audit last year of about 100 Chinese suppliers.

That audit found 59 suppliers that did not provide safety equipment to employees. It also said excessive working hours were commonplace.

China Labor Watch said in 2012 that Samsung was turning a blind eye to child labour at its suppliers in China where billions of Apple Inc. and Samsung smartphones are assembled.

Beanie Babies creator defends probation sentence

Lawyers for the billionaire creator of Beanie Babies say a federal judge didn't let him off too easily by giving him probation and no prison time for hiding at least $25 million from U.S. tax authorities in Swiss banks.

In a 57-page filing Thursday with the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals, Ty Warner denies the judge in Chicago sent a message that there's a different standard for the wealthy.

That's the prosecutors' argument in their recent appeal asking for a do-over of Warner's sentencing. They want Warner to spend at least some time behind bars. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FTC sues Amazon over children's apps purchases

The Federal Trade Commission is suing Amazon over charges that the company has not done enough to prevent children from making unauthorized in-app purchases, according to a complaint filed Thursday in federal court.

The move had been expected since last week, when Amazon said it wouldn't settle with the FTC over the charges. Amazon said in a letter to the FTC last week that it had already refunded money to parents who complained and was prepared to go to court.

1 No bull. Great time of year for sports fans. Tennis, soccer and the greatest game of all: The annual running of the bulls in Pamplona, Spain. What could be better than eating a big breakfast, donning your finest whites with red scarf, and joining the world's craziest as they run down a narrow, cobbled, 850-metre corridor after someone unleashes a herd of bulls? In addition to the many injuries sustained every year, several people have actually been gored … to death. Ah, but for the ones who live, what a rush!

2 Bread basket. The NBA is in full free agency mode with several massive contracts waiting to be signed. Chris Bosh has been offered almost $90 million by the Rockets, the Knicks have a $129-million cheque on the table for Carmelo Anthony, and heaven only knows what will be thrown at LeBron James. So, the toughest decision really belongs to the league: A handful of players, or a medium-sized European country? Yeah, you know I'm right, but you also know they're going with the players.

3 Plane pizza. Severe weather forced a Denver-bound Frontier Airlines flight into an unscheduled landing that grounded them in Wyoming for two hours. As passengers grew restless, Captain Gerhard Brandner called Domino's and footed the bill for 40 pizzas to be delivered right to the plane. That was all it took to make him a hero as the morale of the entire plane turned around. Except, of course, for those seated near the lactose-intolerant. Bravo, anyway.

4 Miss-guidance. Air New Zealand attempted to entice passengers to oft-disregarded safety instructions by producing an in-flight video featuring bikini-clad models. Some patrons found the campaign distasteful, and it was dropped after thousands signed an online petition. And it wasn't just women complaining. Many of the men agreed that after watching it a few times, it really did seem wrong.

Furthermore, she endorses an active lifestyle of running around in circles, and for hygiene, advocates licking yourself twice daily.

But it won't be an easy A, or at least I hope not, because I can already hear parents singing, "If you liked it then you shoulda got an A on it. Uh-oh, Uh-uh-oh."

A send-off fit for the king of Cambodia

Cambodia on Thursday began a three-day elaborate ceremony to transfer the ashes of the late King Father Norodom Sihanouk from the Royal Palace to a stupa in the opulent Silver Pagoda.

On the first day, people provided offerings of food to Buddhist monks in front of the Royal Palace in the morning; in the evening, about 3,000 Buddhist monks gathered in front of the Royal Palace to chant prayers.

King Norodom Sihamoni and his mother, former Queen Norodom Monineath, as well as Prime Minister Hun Sen and his cabinet members, observed the prayer rite inside the Royal Palace. According to the schedule, on the second day, the ashes will be marched along roads near the Royal Palace, and on the third day, they will be interred in a stupa in the Silver Pagoda in the compound of the Royal Palace.

About 20,000 people were expected to attend the 10-kilometre march of the late king's remains on Friday. The government allowed all civil servants and private company employees to take a day off on Friday in order to pay homage and to join the parade of moving the late King's remains. SHANGHAIDAILY.COM

Final wishes

King Father Norodom Sihanouk died at the age of 90 in Beijing on Oct. 15, 2012.

- The late king requested that all of his ashes be interred in the Silver Pagoda alongside the remains of his beloved daughter, Princess Kantha Bopha, who died of leukemia in 1952 at the age of four.

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Dawn of the Planet of the Apes opens this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

Dawn of the Planet of the Apes. Sci-fi simian movie swings between wild action and thought provoking drama

Richard: Mark, to riff off of the old Superman tag line, "You will believe an ape can speak." The special effects are amazing, but beyond the pixel manipulation that brings Caesar and company to vivid life, there are remarkable performances that, for lack of a better phrase, humanize the apes. These aren't the erudite apes of the Roddy McDowell era, with vocabularies that would impress even Conrad Black, but simian characters that behave somewhere midway between pure instinct and higher intelligence. I went bananas for the apes. You?

Mark: The apes may have limited vocabularies but they're a lot more interesting than the humans in the picture. This is a very sophisticated blockbuster that deals with our queasy relationship to the animal world and also acts as a metaphor for our need for civilized diplomacy. The post-apocalyptic world of a verdant but decaying San Francisco is visually plausible, and there are plot points worthy of a Greek tragedy. But enough about that. The apes are rad, man!

RC: It sure is a different kind of blockbuster. It has all the elements of the usual summer fare — it's a sequel, things blow up and, if that wasn't enough, also features an ape — but it takes risks. About half of it is done in ape sign language (with subtitles) and it's not chock-a-block with action. Instead it takes time building characters and motivations so when the wild ape-on-human action begins it feels earned and it feels epic.

MB: Ape-on-human? What about the fabulous ape-on-ape action? When these apes go at each other, it's feral and primitive. WWE, take note! And the ape sign language forces them to act with their eyes, which reminded me of the power of old silent films. I didn't need a bunch of clunky dialogue to know what these gorillas were thinking.

RC: I agree. I think this is the kind of performance that could convince the Academy to consider "motion capture" acting for inclusion in the Oscar acting categories.

Beyond the performances though, is a thought-provoking movie about race, gun usage and xenophobia. It's masked in allegory and, well, a story about talking apes, but it touches on those hot button topics in an interesting way.

MB: What is missing from the movie is James Franco, who brought some lightness and offhand charm to the last Apes movie. The apes are so strong in these films that the movie needs some star charisma to balance it out. Nevertheless, we've come a long way away from Bedtime for Bonzo.

Synopsis

Set 10 years after Rise of the Planet of the Apes saw Caesar (Andy Serkis) break free from a San Francisco primate sanctuary and start an ape uprising, the middle-aged chimpanzee is the leader of a large population of genetically evolved apes. Most of humankind was wiped out by a pandemic of ALZ-113—a "simian flu" virus that speeds up the rebuilding of brain cells in apes but is deadly to humans — but when a small band of humans scout a water source near the ape camp a monkey wrench is thrown into the fragile peace between homo sapiens and simians.

A film a dozen years in the making

Boyhood. Director Richard Linklater talks about pulling off a story with the same cast year after year

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Boyhood follows one boy (Ellar Coltrane) as he develops over 12 years. CONTRIBUTED

Director Richard Linklater's new film, Boyhood, is a unique, 12-years-in-the-making experiment, shot in short bursts over a long span of time to follow one young man (Ellar Coltrane) as he develops. We were curious how he managed to pull that off.

With a movie like this, filmed in such a unique way, how did you decide when to end the story?
I always had it planned out, to end it when he goes off to college. I remember with that moment, the feeling like there was freedom over that hill. You know, leaving home, being out of high school. It's just different, felt like you were an adult or something. I always had that being the little denouement, I guess. I knew that for years. I didn't know the exact dialogue, but I knew that was the note to hit.

It's impressive that you had so much of it planned out for so long.
Yeah, not the exact dialogue but every character trajectory. And then we had the luxury of being able to think about it for a year each year.

Were there any discoveries or surprises along the way that made it necessary to course-correct?
The thing was such a little incremental collaboration — a collaboration with incremental growth for the characters and the culture and everything, so there was never anything insurmountable or any huge curveballs that came our way. It was all kind of predictable. Like, "OK, everybody's a year older." I got to kind of work through all that. So it was kind of as planned.

He's not the most talkative protagonist.
I wanted it to mirror how life feels. When you're a little kid, your parents are doing all the talking. You go where they go, you're so beholden to them, but as you get older you gain more agency and suddenly it's your tastes that dictate. So that seemed to me developmentally somewhat accurate. And he's a pretty laid-back guy, actually.

When you cast Ellar as a kid, was there any concern about how he might grow up as far as his personality or his looks?
If he had become a significantly different guy? I knew that he would become himself and the film would go there, so if he had ended up a 200-pound football player, it would be a similar story about a guy who … becomes a 200-pound football player. It would touch on a lot of the same things, probably, but in a different vessel.

Given how much the independent world has changed since you started, how do you think you'd go about making a debut film in 2014?
Oh gosh. I don't know, I think it's easier to make a film now. There are a lot more films made. I think it's harder to get them seen, it's harder to have any cultural impact or be seen much, so that's the challenge. I think a lot of it is the indie audience has gotten older, and I think young people aren't necessarily picking up the indies. The ubiquity maybe of the technology makes actually consuming films in a strange way less of a big deal for them. They just download them and whatever. It's a struggle to get them out there.

Ode to a life lived out loud

Life Itself. Even in the face of death, Roger Ebert let filmmaker Steve James in to share his story

MANORI RAVINDRAN
scene@metronews.ca

Roger Ebert and his wife Chaz, who says the late film critic "just lived his life out loud." CONTRIBUTED

In the documentary Life Itself, an emotional Martin Scorsese explains how the late film critic Roger Ebert arranged a tribute for him at the 1982 Toronto International Film Festival that helped resurrect the director's career after a rough spell. The Chicago Sun-Times critic was close friends with Scorsese, as he had been with a host of directors whose films he reviewed over his iconic 46-year career.

Steve James, the filmmaker behind the 1994 Oscar-nominated documentary Hoop Dreams, was not one of them.

But that didn't prevent the documentarian — whose films were invariably praised by Ebert — from adapting the critic's 2011 memoir Life Itself into the titular documentary, which has been met with critical acclaim since premiering at the Sundance Film Festival in January.

"I don't think he wanted that kind of relationship with me and I didn't know it was possible," James tells Metro in an interview. "But for what it's worth, I do think it served the movie because I came into his life very much an outsider and I had no real baggage or friendship."

The two-hour documentary is a poignant portrait of the outspoken critic, who passed away in April 2013 after a decade-long battle with thyroid cancer.

Rather than a generic, talking head-strewn profile, Life Itself carefully reflects the scope of Ebert's interests and his mercurial nature.

"He made it clear from the get-go that he expected I'd do an honest and multi-faceted portrait of him," says James.

"I think that was something he had prized in my other films — that they present people in a three-dimensional light — so he expected that to be the case here because that's the kind of film he'd want to see whether it was on him or not."

James' previous films such as The Interrupters, on a group of violence counselors in troubled Chicago neighbourhoods, and Hoop Dreams, about two young basketball players, had followed a colourful cast of characters. He says switching gears to focus on one, high-profile individual was a welcome change.

"The idea of doing a biography on someone who has this fascinating life was kind of exciting for me because I haven't done any films like that," he said.

"And to do it on someone who was famous and beloved — these were all new territories for me. Having done as many films as I have over the years, you relish opportunities to tell different kinds of stories in different ways."

But while James had five years with the boys of Hoop Dreams, the director would only have four months of filming with Ebert before he passed away. Moreover, the critic was hospitalized for almost the entire period, leaving James to question how much of his condition to cover.

Ebert's cancer left the lower portion of his face disfigured due to multiple chin, throat and mouth surgeries, and he also suffered from a serious hip fracture.

"Roger was struggling with recovery, and then setbacks, but to let me film a rehab sequence where he's really struggling, that was pretty brave of him," the director says. "He could have very easily said, 'I might get better. Don't film me in rehab,' and I would have totally understood, but he allowed us."

It was the kind of man he was, adds James, and for viewers unfamiliar with Ebert's reviews or television show with the late film critic Gene Siskel, the director assures Life Itself is about more than someone who spent his days scribbling in dark rooms.

"The film is about an incredible life that was full of adventure and ups and downs, and it's a film about Roger's significance to culture and his importance," says James. "But I think it's also about a guy who — like [Ebert's wife] Chaz says — just lived his life out loud."

Reunion. Jonah Hill and Channing Tatum team up for new Coen Bros. film

Jonah Hill AFP

Like other cast members involved with the Coen Brothers' Hail Caesar, Jonah Hill might be well known for comedic parts but has experience working on more serious fare.

Channing Tatum's latest film, Foxcatcher, is a biographical drama starring The Office and Anchorman actor Steve Carrell as philanthropic, menacing wrestling coach John du Pont, with Tatum opposite him as Olympic wrestler Mark Schultz.

And Jonah Hill's appearances in Knocked Up, Superbad and This Is The End are counterbalanced by Oscar nominated roles in The Wolf of Wall Street and Moneyball.

The Coen brothers are equally adept at straddling grim and grin-inducing material, known for their work on The Big Lebowski, Inside Llewyn Davis and O Brother, Where Art Thou? on the one hand, and No Country for Old Men, Fargo and True Grit on the other, though tending toward dark comedy in recent years.

As for Hail Caesar, the Coens have in mind a story about a 1950s Hollywood fixer whose job it is to make sure one studio's roster of actors are happy — or at least compliant.

Josh Brolin and George Clooney are already on board, while Scarlett Johansson, Tilda Swinton and Ralph Fiennes are also in discussions, as Variety reports, with production to start in fall of this year.

You'll get your dragons when Martin is damn well ready!

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Bad news for Game of Thrones fans who are getting impatient waiting for author George R.R. Martin to finish the hit book series. He really doesn't want to hear your questions about when the next book will be out, so stop asking about it, you punk kids. Actually, Martin didn't put it that nicely: "I find that question pretty offensive, frankly, when people start speculating about my death and my health," he tells Swiss newspaper Tages-Anzeiger. "So f— you to those people." But since you asked, Martin admits that, at 65 years old, he's in no hurry to crank out more material. You'll get your dire wolves and dragons when he's damn well ready. "I have been slowing down. I don't know if it's the fact that I'm getting older — I think it's partly that," he says. "But I also think it's partly that the series is so much more successful that there's demands that come with success." I feel like we're going in circles here, George. So … when's the next book coming out? You're not getting any younger, you know.

Downey Jr. Jr.? RDJ and wife expecting baby girl

Here's a bit of good kid-related news for Robert Downey Jr. after his 20-year-old son, Indio, was arrested for cocaine possession last month. The Iron Man star announced via social media that he and wife Susan Downey are expecting another baby. He kept it pretty simple on Twitter with: "Yo. Susan. Me. Baby. Girl. November. Scorpio?"

But on Facebook he got a little more effusive, writing, "Um. I don't know if it's a 'man's world,' but I'm certain women run it.

Susan and I are therefore delighted to announce we are expecting a baby. Girl. November." The couple also has a two-year-old son, Exton.

Lobster rolls with a tarragon mayo twist

RICARDO COOKS
Chef Ricardo
Ricardo Magazine

When I'm making lobster, I always make more than enough to go around.

Let's be honest: what's better than leftover lobster for lunch?

And although any seafood dish makes me happy, I have a soft spot for lobster rolls (with a bag of chips on the side). They remind me of my first vacation on the East Coast with my wife.

Remoulade

1. In a bowl, combine all the ingredients.
2. Season with salt and pepper.
3. Refrigerate for at least 30 minutes.

Lobster Rolls

1. Fill the hot dog buns with remoulade and lobster pieces.

Ingredients

Remoulade

- 3 cups (750 ml) celery root, peeled and cut into thin julienne
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) mayonnaise
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) lemon juice
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) chopped fresh tarragon
- 1 tsp (5 ml) capers, drained and finely chopped
- 1 tsp (5 ml) Dijon mustard
- 1/2 clove garlic, finely chopped
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) Tabasco sauce, or to taste
- Salt and pepper

Lobster Rolls

- 4 hot dog buns, toasted
- Meat of 2 cooked lobsters, cooled and cut into chunks

Note

- For a more classic remoulade, substitute the tarragon with flat-leaf parsley.
- To serve as a salad, divide the remoulade on your choice of lettuce and garnish with pieces of lobster.

This recipe makes four servings. RICARDO

Summer cocktails

Ungava gin a sunny tonic

LIQUID ASSETS

Though vodka may be king of the white spirits, modern mixologists have grown bored with its taste profile or, actually, its lack of one. Just look to the shelves. They're populated with vodkas flavoured with everything from root beer to birthday cake.

That's paved the way for the return of gin. Considered very old school (it was invented back in the mid-17th century), gin's combination of juniper berries and botanicals gives it personality plus, which makes it perfect over ice or as the base of classic drinks like gin and tonic and the martini.

Artisan gin makers the world over are turning heads and tantalizing taste buds. Named for the Ungava Peninsula in northern Quebec, Ungava Canadian Premium Gin ($34.90 – $37.99) is a robust botanical stew that includes the likes of Nordic juniper, cloudberry and Labrador tea.

It's an aromatic powerhouse with a unique yellow hue that will add a little Quebecois sunshine to your summertime cocktails.

Summerlicious

Date: July 4-20
Location: Toronto

Notable has been giving out free meals for the past week in the #17nightsofsummerlicious series and there's no plans to stop. Lucky winners have already enjoyed dining at the likes of Bymark, Splendido, and Weslodge, while tonight's winner will be headed to Canoe. Start entering today if you want to end up sitting down at Lee, One, Nota Bene, Momofuku Daisho, or any other of Toronto's best restaurants over the next 10 days.

Red Bull Thre3Style

Date: July 11
Location: The Hoxton, 69 Bathurst St.

Only an original 15-minute mix stands in the way of deciding the fate and future of our country's best DJs. And while it may be stressful for said DJs, it's heaven for us. The Canadian East Regional Qualifier will select the contestants who'll move on to compete in the Nationals in Vancouver. Not only will eight hopefuls take the stage, but star judges Grandtheft and Thugli will also be laying down sets. You'd better start calling in sick now.

World Cup Final

Date: July 13
Location: Rio de Janeiro

It's took more than a month, but after all the shocks, goals, saves, and (fake) injuries, the World Cup Final has finally been decided. This Sunday, half of the world will watch three-time winners Germany take on two-time champs Argentina. It's likely going to be a pretty Klose match and we definitely expect things to get a little Messi, but as long as there's a pint in your hand we're guessing you'll get by just fine.

Schmooze

Date: July 11
Location: Maison Mercer, 15 Mercer St.

A rooftop patio every Friday for the entire summer? Notable.ca's got you. Remember the iconic Schmooze of around a decade ago? Well, it's now Maison Mercer, and Notable's teamed up with them to host one of the hottest after-work parties in the city. And it's tonight. Picture complimentary barbeque from 5-6:30 p.m., happy hour drink specials until 11 p.m. (think: pitchers of mojitos and sangria), and a view and vibe among the best in the city.

Katy Perry

Date: July 18, 19, 21
Location: ACC

Not everyone could follow a week that featured Beyoncé, Jay Z, and Lady Gaga taking the stage on the same night, but we're pretty sure Katy Perry's show is going to take over Toronto with the same force… if for no other reason than she's playing three nights in four days. If you haven't heard her roar before, you certainly will now.

Honda Indy Toronto

Date: July 18-20
Location: Exhibition Place

If you think this is just about a race, think again. The Honda Indy has blown up to full festival status by including a taste fest, craft beer fest, adrenaline fest and much, much more. Sure, cars will street race at insanely high speeds at some point and a winner will definitely be declared, but at this point that's basically just a bonus compared to the rest of the experience.

Hunger games: Raps want only winners

NBA free agency. Re-signing of Lowry solidifies hard-nosed nucleus of GM Ujiri's Toronto upstarts

Raptors general manager Masai Ujiri, left, and newly re-signed point guard Kyle Lowry speak to reporters on Thursday at Real Sports Bar and Grill. COLIN MCCONNELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

There is a trait Masai Ujiri seeks out more than any other in the players he covets for the Raptors, something far more important to him than dribbling or shooting, passing or defence.

He will open the vault to find those who possess it, he will take risks because he sees it dormant in some players, ready to be developed over time.

It is impossible to define but it's led him to make subtle changes and key additions to a 2014-15 roster now almost fully formed.

"I don't like guys who cut corners or try to go the easy route," the president and general manager said Thursday while officially announcing the return of point guard Kyle Lowry and a couple of other additions to the team.

"These guys work hard ... and you know what?"

"I don't pay players, I don't pay stats, I try to pay winners. And that's what you want to do. It's not like they've done it for many years but it's a great start for us."

Ujiri's work is all but done with Thursday's official announcements that Lowry is back on a four-year, $48-million deal, joined by backup point guard Greivis Vasquez and one-time Raptor James Johnson at small forward.

There may be room for one more transaction but the majority of the work is done.

The tweaking of the roster hasn't meant huge substantial changes but the subtle ones may be good enough.

Lowry said he had an offer from the Houston Rockets, accompanied by phone calls from Dwight Howard and Chandler Parsons, and he had contact with the Miami Heat during the free-agent negotiation process.

But the chance to improve with a young roster, and to lead it, was more than he could turn down. It speaks to where the Raptors are as a franchise — growing, not there yet but promising — that the chance to lead a group was more enticing to Lowry than the chance to join a legitimate contender.

"I knew the money was going to come, the years were going to come," he said of the deal that makes him the highest-paid player on the roster. "I wanted to be in a place I could win and grow.

"This organization, from top to bottom, is an unbelievable first-class organization and I want to be a part of it and do something special."

Leafs sign Smith, Valiev to deals

The Toronto Maple Leafs have signed forward Trevor Smith to a one-year contract and defenceman Rinat Valiev to a three-year entry-level deal.

Smith, 29, played 28 games for the Maple Leafs last season, collecting nine points (four goals, five assists) with four penalty minutes.

The Maple Leafs selected the 19-year-old Valiev in the third round, 68th overall of the 2014 draft. THE CANADIAN PRESS

McIlroy on fire at Scottish Open

Three years after virtually giving up on links golf, a more mature Rory McIlroy appears ready to give it another chance.

McIlroy tamed blustery conditions on day one of the Scottish Open to shoot a 7-under 64 on Thursday, giving him a one-stroke lead and showing his links game is in great shape ahead of next week's British Open.

Rookie halfback thrust into starting role

He's just two games into his CFL career but halfback Anthony Coombs is no longer a rookie in Scott Milanovich's eyes.

The former University of Manitoba star will make his first CFL start Saturday night when Toronto hosts the Calgary Stampeders. Coombs, the Argonauts' 2014 first-round draft pick, replaces veteran slotback Andre Durie, who suffered a broken clavicle in last weekend's 48-15 home win over the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Coombs, 21, was impressive in his first extended CFL action. The five-foot-nine 190-pound Winnipeg native ran for 52 yards on six carries, added a 17-yard reception and blocked effectively in pass protection against the Riders.

Argos coach Scott Milanovich on Anthony Coombs' ascent to the starting lineup

"Essentially he was the starter last week so it shouldn't be a real shock for him," said Milanovich, the Argos' head coach. "He's going to kind of be in a new spot but he played some of that in the pre-season.

"We expect him to play well. He's been here a couple of weeks, he's no longer a rookie. We expect him to do his job."

Coombs was selected third overall in the most recent CFL draft after running for 2,218 yards and 17 touchdowns at Manitoba while adding 51 receptions for 840 yards and 11 TDs. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Justin Morrow will look to put in another solid performance when Toronto FC (6-5-3, 21 points, fourth in Eastern Conference) take on Houston Dynamo (5-10-3, 18 points, seventh in East) on Saturday night at BMO Field.
STEVE RUSSELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Morrow an unsung hero with Toronto

MLS. Solid play from less-heralded backline has given TFC much-needed consistency

Bloom has started all 14 games this season for Toronto (6-5-3) while Morrow has started 13 — he came on as a substitute in the other after attending the funeral of his grandmother.

"Consistency is key in that position," says Toronto manager Ryan Nelsen. "It's spitting out seven outs of 10s (ratings every game). Not nines and fours. Just throw (sevens) out week in, week out.

"Those players fly under the radar of the general public but for me and the coaching staff they're like gold."

Bloom, whose pay is listed at $48,835 US this season, took over at right fullback late last year after Toronto decided that popular incumbent Richard Eckersley was surplus to requirements due to his salary. Now a New York Red Bull, Eckersley ($373,333) has made four starts in 2014.

Morrow, whose salary is listed at $169,562 came over in a mid-December trade that saw Toronto send allocation money to San Jose.

The five-foot-nine, 165 pounder — a young veteran at 26 — instantly added MLS experience to the Toronto roster with 73 appearances.

"He's been very good," said Nelsen. "He's come in, he's a North American kid who knows the league, knows what the league's about. Lovely age. He's athletic, he's good on the ball. He just brings something that we needed in that position. Just as Mark Bloom is doing on the other side."

Toronto has benefited from a stable back-line this season with captain Steven Caldwell a fixture at centre back alongside either Doneil Henry or rookie Nick Hagglund. Toronto is averaging 1.29 goals against a game, which ranks seventh in the league.

Morrow, who grew up as a more attacking player and was a wide midfielder for most of his collegiate career at the University of Notre Dame, describes himself as a tenacious, hard-working and versatile player who likes to take part in attacks.

"I think more importantly now becoming a veteran, I would say I'm a reliable player. And that's the thing that I'm focusing on this year and that's what I want to show most in my game. Those types of players, maybe they don't get the headlines but they make a good team," said Morrow.

NBA. Shelly Sterling returns to witness stand

A day after being berated in court by her husband, Shelly Sterling returned to the witness stand Thursday in a trial to determine whether she has the right to sell Donald Sterling's Los Angeles Clippers for $2 billion.

Mrs. Sterling said her husband encouraged her to sell the team for the best price after the NBA banned him from the league for life for making racist remarks.

She moved quickly to get bids and kept her husband informed daily, she said in Los Angeles County Superior Court.

When she reported that former Microsoft CEO Steve Ballmer had offered $2 billion, Donald Sterling became excited and said she had done a good job but within days his mood changed, she said.

Shelly Sterling GETTY IMAGES

He became enraged in a conversation, cursed her, said he would never sell the team and would sue the league, she testified.

Shelly Sterling also defended the deal she unilaterally made with Ballmer — which would be a record price for an NBA team — and said she believed the sale would prevent disaster for the Clippers.

Mrs. Sterling said she feared players and sponsors would boycott if her husband held on to the team.

Donald Sterling contends that his wife had no right under a family trust that owns the Clippers to single-handedly make the deal.

In earlier testimony, two doctors hired by Mrs. Sterling to examine him declared that the 80-year-old had Alzheimer's disease and was mentally incapable to act as administrator of the trust.

In his own testimony this week, Donald Sterling shouted from the witness stand that he would never sell the team. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's not the right time to speak up. If you say too much today and over the weekend you may have to unsay it again in the very near future.

♑ Capricorn

Your energy may take a bit of a dip but you are still on red hot form. Limit yourself to what is truly important. Nothing matters more than your No. 1 aim.
